

Hong Kong airline Cathay Pacific announces shark fin ban

23 June 2016 | China

Share

Animal rights campaigners have been calling on Cathay to introduce a shark fin carriage ban for years

Top Stories

Huge crowds attend final Castro ceremony

Huge crowds pay their last respects to former Cuban leader Fidel Castro in the eastern city of Santiago.

3 hours ago

US Greens drop Pennsylvania recount bid

2 hours ago

Dozens feared dead in California fire

4 hours ago

Features & Analysis

Hong Kong-based airline Cathay Pacific has announced a ban on shipments of shark fin in a move that has been welcomed by conservationists.

Cathay is one of the world's biggest cargo airlines, and its decision is expected to have a sizeable impact.

Previously, the airline had said it would only transport shark fin that was sustainably sourced.

Shark fin is considered a delicacy in Chinese cuisine and is often served as a soup at upmarket banquets.

More than 70 million sharks are killed every year, according to WWF figures. Large numbers are exported to Hong Kong, where they are consumed or further exported to mainland China.

AP

Shark fins are prized in certain parts of the world

AFP

Stop nagging!

I saved my marriage by showing my husband more respect

10 Things

The Friends stars' stand-ins who looked nothing like them

Inflexible friend

Why the plastic credit card is on its way out

One conservationist said Cathay's decision would make Hong Kong 'proud'

"On the issue of shark's fin, with immediate effect we are happy to agree to ban the carriage," Cathay Pacific said in a statement on Wednesday.

It said it had not approved any shark fin shipments over the last year, pointing out that it had turned down 15 shipment requests for shark-related products.

Early reports said the ban extended to all shark products on cargo and passenger flights, but the airline told the BBC it currently applied to shark fin only,

Cathay said it would continue to review its policy.

Marine conservationists hailed Cathay's decision, with one proclaiming that it would make Hong Kong "proud".

"More Hong Kong businesses need to follow the lead," Hong Kong-based conservationist Sharon Kwok told AFP.

Government data cited by the South China Morning Post shows that shark fin imports to Hong Kong dropped by 42% between 2010 and 2015 to 5,717 tonnes.

'Outlaw' bishop

The Catholic renegade who loves Rome in spite of China

One year later

The volunteers who kept Chennai afloat

'Unacceptable' decline

Is Australia heading for an education crisis?

During this period there was also a significant decline in imports by air.

Cathay now joins airlines including British Airways, American Airlines, Qantas, Singapore Airlines and Emirates in banning shark fin.

Related Topics

Hong Kong

Conservation

Share this story About sharing

More on this story

Ecuador seizes huge illegal shark fin haul

29 May 2015

Singapore casino bans shark fin

12 June 2014

Shark fin banned at official Hong Kong functions

13 September 2013

Hong Kong shark fin trade declines

7 March 2013

Should shark fins be on the menu?

7 March 2013

Dear Mr President

An outlet for gripes in a repressive country

Barrage of gunfire

A friend recalls the day when gunmen shot Bob Marley

Weekend Edition

Stories you may have missed in the past seven days

Most Popular

Read

Watched